last year. The exception is the year 1897, when enormous quantities were rushed in during the final weeks of the operation of the McKinley tariff, under which wool had free entry. In spite of protection that the president has declared excessive, the wool clip of the country is only 10 per cent. greater than it was twenty years ago. In spite of high prices for wool and high prices for mutton, our flocks show decrease in recent years. The year book of the department of agriculture gives the total number of sheep on farms in 1908 as 56,000, 000 head of a unit value of $3.43, as compared with 64,000,000 head of a unit value of $2.83 in 1903. The theory of tariff protection is that under the system the protected industry will develop with at least an appreciable benefit to the country at large. The last few years of the sheep business furnish no confirmation of the theory.

"The increased importation appears in all grades. The average receipts of clothing wool from 1904 to 1908 inclusive were 79,150,000 pounds, while receipts for last year were 143,800,000 pounds. In that period combing wools show increase from 16,500,000 pounds to 32,100,000 and carpet wools from an average of 96,000,000 pounds to 130,000,000. The total importation of last year was 312,000,000 pounds, or a little more than the normal domestic clip. That is, the sheep raisers of the country supplied only about one-half of the wool needed in domestic mills. Imports of manufactured woolen goods are not a heavy item in our trade. While there has been an increase of something like 50 per cent. in the last ten years, the total for 1909 was only $22,000,000 about two-thirds of which is represented by cloth and women's and children's dress goods. The factory value of the product of domestic mills is not far from $400,000,000.

"The wool schedule is a tangle of complexities from which experts can do figure support for any argument they may see fit to advance. Taking the total value of exports and total customs receipts for ten years, the rate appears as a little more than 40 per cent. ad valorem on the entire quantity. Because of wide difference in weight, in percentage of wool content and in grades of wool used, it is impossible to say what saving might
